

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

June 13, 2000

H.R. 3201

Carter G. Woodson Home National Historic Site Study Act of 2000

As ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources on June 7, 2000

H.R. 3201 would direct the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a study to determine the suitability and feasibility of designating the Carter G. Woodson home in the District of Columbia as a national historic site. The legislation would require the Secretary to report on the national, historical, and cultural resources within the study area that merit recognition and designation as a national historic site.

Assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts, CBO estimates that the federal government would spend up to $75,000 over the next 18 months to implement H.R. 3201. The act would not affect direct spending or receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply. H.R. 3201 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

The CBO staff contacts for this estimate are Deborah Reis and Ali Aslam. The estimate was approved by Peter H. Fontaine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.
